Kay,
Best of luck

remaining years at W.H.S.
You have been a "well"

times we've had together. Remember you were one doing a nice job at peering in class? That them, but so too. I'll never forget the look on some of the kids' faces when you put socks in their seat, scared them with a "tapped" every thing. Not only you, but got from the study I wasn't with a pretty party. Never forget the time at my P.S. party. I don't dare were so scared you couldn't hardly walk. ^{W.H.S.} Well, I guess that's about all. Keep up the good work and you'll probably make it out of this ^{W.H.S.} with me more years. I hope you're right along to gain a place in the next year with me. ^{W.H.S.}

Dedication

The class of 1960 takes the greatest pleasure in dedicating this, the 1960 NORTHLAND, to Mr. Everett Cunningham. We would also like to extend our heartfelt thanks for his thirty-seven years of unequalled service he has given our school, the greater part of which has been spent as our Vocational Agriculture instructor.

We would also like to express our appreciation to the great deal of patience, kindness and guidance he has given to our class in the way of wisdom and advice. Without it, the class of 1960 would have been less cognizant of tomorrow. With it, we are better prepared for the good things to come in the future. Our deepest thanks, Mr. Cunningham, in the dedication of this book.

Superintendent's Message

My congratulations to the graduating class of 1960!

Before you is a fresh new future. You can close the door on the past, and start anew for yourselves from this day forward. That is one view you can take, but at the same time it is well to realize that your experiences this far are a foundation for your later years, and contain much of value to you. Your yesterdays, as well as your todays are blocks with which you build, and yesterday contributes to the present, just as surely as today helps decide tomorrow. You have seen in your high school the results of an ideal of our forefathers who founded this Nation. They believed that men and women should have the right to be free and independent citizens of representative government. They had lofty ideals and were willing to work for them.

As you plan and build your careers, I hope you too will have lofty ideals. I hope that you are determined to help preserve our representative form of government; for only if government of and by and for free people survives will you have your chance to build a career of your own choosing.

If you need further training to prepare for your career, I am sure you will resolve to attain that preparation.

The other day I read a statement that I think is of value. That statement is, "Successful living depends on making adjustments." As you plan your future and as you carve out of your experiences your life work and your life activities, I am hopeful that the education you have obtained here will help you in making the necessary adjustments for successful living.

My best wishes to you for a successful future!

Principal's Message

Class of 1960!

Congratulations, Seniors, in a job well done. Your class has left a fine scholastic record for our undergraduates to aim for. Twelve of forty in your class will graduate with honors and twenty-two will finish their high school education with an average over 80 per cent.

You have a right to be proud of your accomplishment. Especially when you realize that at one time or other there were seventy-two students in your class. Of course some of these students transferred and completed their studies elsewhere, but all too many simply gave up their rights for an education for various reasons. However, it must be remembered that the real task of life is ahead of you. Continue your efforts and at all times do your best and your future will be successful.

The faculty and I extend to you our best wishes for a happy and successful future. It is all up to you.

Good luck in your next 3 years at W.H.S.

"Dancing act from the 20's"

Escorting Mr. Cunningham to the stage.

A replica of Mr. Cunningham's 1923 Ford.

On March 2, the Future Homemakers sponsored an assembly program, "This Is Your Life," honoring Mr. Cunningham. Janice Clark acted as emcee.

The program was opened with a dancing act from the "twenties" - Caroline Umphrey, Roberta Bell, Donna Kinney, Sharon Sponberg, and Katherine Rand did the Charleston.

After a short spelling quiz, Janice presented Mr. Cunningham with a scrapbook of his life.

A few of the highlights of Mr. Cunningham's life are as follows:

Mr. Cunningham was born at Patten, Maine; October 26, 1900.

Mr. Cunningham entered the U. of M. in 1919, graduating in 1923 with many honors.

In October of 1923, he took his first teaching position at Washburn High School where he has remained the last 37 years. At the present time Mr. Cunningham holds a life Certificate in the Professional Secondary level and also a Special Agricultural Life Certificate.

In 1937 Mr. Cunningham was given an Honorary State Farmer degree.

During July of 1948, after 25 years of service in the teaching career at Washburn, his friends all over Aroostook County presented him with a new Oldsmobile. Also during this year he was elected as State President of the Maine Association of Vocational Agricultural Teachers and he holds this position at the present time.

Mr. Cunningham has been very active in Rotary and the Lodge.

These and many more, too numerous to mention, have greatly helped to make Mr. Cunningham an outstanding person both in the school and in the community.

Many thanks to Mrs. Vaughn, our advisor, and Mrs. Cunningham for the many hours spent in making this assembly possible.

FIRST DATE

by Linda Wood

If you have never been on that "first date" then you couldn't possibly imagine the terrible things that can happen. At this time I will try to give you an idea of the many crises that could happen and some ways to avoid them.

First, let me give you boys a few hints. When you ask a girl for a date, don't be shy about it. Walk right up and grab her arm so she can't get away. I'm sure she will admire your masculinity if you do this, but don't hang on too hard or she may tell you to "Drop dead!"

That night when you arrive at her home, you may have trouble making conversation with her parents during that last three hours while she is just finishing her ritual of "getting ready." Well, the family cat is always a nice starter for conversation, especially if they don't happen to have anything but a dog. I'm sure they would never question your intelligence or sanity if you called their dog a cat. People do it every day.

Now she has finally arrived. Well, it is always nice to say "hello" to her, but a greeting like "Hi-ya, Doll" will go over much better with her parents.

One thing that may happen on your date is this. You go into a soda shop and order a vanilla ice cream soda for yourself and a strawberry soda for her, but the waiter brings her a chocolate soda. Now if this happens you just can't create a scene by making the waiter bring another so give her your vanilla soda. I'm sure she will be thrilled to death by your chivalry.

Of course, if you take her to a restaurant and she orders more than you can afford to pay for, this can present a problem, too. But it is easily solved. The waiter will be glad to lend you some money.

Now for the girls--when you are on that first date, never be ready on time. Let your beau "sweat it out" for an hour or two with your parents. This will be great for your future friendship. In what way I'm sure I couldn't say. After all, you must find something out for yourself.

One crisis that may come up for the girl during that first date is this. You are both dancing when all of a sudden you twirl and your skirt falls off. Now this is really quite minor. It happens all the time. Don't be embarrassed, just put the skirt back on.

If he takes you to a restaurant and you don't know how much money he has, here is what you may do. Just order a glass of water. If he doesn't seem to think that would be sufficient you will know that he has money, so you may order a steak dinner at that time.

Well, I could go on and on about how you should act on your first date, but I think I have kept my date waiting about two hours so I better show him that I do intend to go out with him. Girls, never make the mistake of making him wait TOO long.

DEMOCRACY IN THE CLASSROOM

by Frieda Charette

To most of you democracy means to have equal rights. We have read of great men who have said that regardless of race, sex, or religion, we all can enjoy freedom--freedom pertaining especially to the Ten Amendments. Yet while attending school, do you ever get the feeling you are not being treated like the other fellow? I'm sure all of you have heard someone say, "Oh, she can get away with it. She's the teacher's pet," or maybe some other similar remark.

Democracy in the classroom may mean several things: from getting the same punishment for a bad deed to receiving equal ranks if you deserve them.

Do you ever get angry because the teacher gave you detention for whispering and "so-and-so" was whispering, too, but didn't get it? So you think the teacher's picking on you? Think to yourself, has the teacher warned me more often than "so-and-so?" Maybe that is why you were punished quicker than the other fellow.

WHAT AMERICA MEANS TO ME
by Sheldon Richardson

America means more to me,
Than just people, lakes, and land,
It means to me, as it did then,
When the minutemen took their stand.

It's a land of many people,
The earth's great "melting pot,"
With great wealth and strength,
Though many dictators have thought not.

It's more than a great strip of land,
That stretches from sea to sea.
It's people united with one great cause,
Yes, this is America to me.

It means free speech, radio and press,
Land of the free and the brave,
Freedom from oppression and tyranny,
The Home of Old Glory, long may it wave.

It's been led by many great men,
The presidency has seen quite a few,
And in our capitol city,
You can feel the heritage of Washington and Lincoln, too.

It's more than just living,
In the land that the world knows is best.
It's something the pioneers must have felt
When they moved on to develop the West.

It's more than great armies,
And trains, ships and planes,
It's little white churches
Nestled along village lanes.

Land of the world's great religions,
Catholic, Protestant and Jew,
Land of the world's three great races,
Caucasian, Negroid and Mongoloid, too.

It's more than rivers, mountains and plains
More than the Fourth of July,
It's the feeling you get when the STAR
SPANGLED BANNER,
Is played as the band passes by.

It's more than justice and freedom,
It's the hope of all men till eternity.
Yes, America means all this,
And more to me.

MY WOODS
by Martha McCall

The woods for all its splendor
Is a quiet peaceful place
A place to roam and wander
Without the world to face.

A place for love and freedom
Without a taste of hate
For this is where I often come
When it is dark and late.

Much time is lost and wasted
In this world of ours
By those who've never tasted
The woods at twilight hours.

HATS AND MORE HATS
by Pat Fournier

I wandered into a hat shop one day,
And thought to myself, "I guess I'll stay."
Some of these hats caused quite a sensation,
But who in the world would wear that creation.

There is a hat that's made for a dunce.
And look at that one, I think it has mumps!
Here is a hat with three big plumes,
Here's one that looks like a drawn out balloon

This is the best--it's made out of fruit,
Apples and oranges, just look at the loot.
Now here is a hat that really has style,
But look at that feather, it sticks up a mile.

Here is a hat that's like a bandana,
Here's one that looks like a squashed banana,
The Turban, they say, was grand in its day,
It's made out of towels and jewels so they say.

There's one like a centerpiece made out of flowers,
In making that, somebody sure wasted hours,
I certainly hope that by now you can see,
I simply can not find a hat made for me.

BABYSITTING
by Ruth Jardine

I can not do my homework
When I babysit at this place,
I have a cat up in my lap
And a dog up in my face.

I expect no trouble from the child
She'll go right up to bed,
But I keep my eye on the turtle
Or the dog might have him dead.

If you feel you are "being picked on" examine yourself; try to improve. If this "Picking on" still persists, why not have a friendly little talk with your teacher? You may not think this is such a good idea, but perhaps the teacher can explain things. Often times the attitude you have, may just be caused by your imagination.

Have you ever thought that maybe the reason you weren't chosen for some things was because you couldn't be depended on, or you never finished a job you were given. Show a little more interest in your schoolwork, volunteer your services, never groan and grunt when your teacher tells you have an essay, or the like, to prepare for tomorrow's class. Maybe this is just her test to find out whether or not you'll do it and how well you can do an assignment.

To sum it up, democracy in the classroom depends upon you, your classmates, and your advisors. Work together and everyone will enjoy equal rights. Our classroom problems are mainly concerned with "Why does 'so-and-so' get away with everything?" Think it over, why does he?

SWEET SIXTEEN

by Pat Fournier

What a wonderful day! School's out for the weekend, and no homework. I dash home to get something to eat before I take off again. But wait a minute--there's a strange car in the dooryard. Take it easy now, be sure your hair is combed and your lipstick is on straight. Now don't run, walk into the house like a lady. Walk through the door and look into the smiling face of, you guessed it, an ancient aunt.

"Well, look who's here," I hear her say. "My, haven't you grown!" In five years what do they expect me to do, shrink?

Then, "How old are you?"

"Sixteen," I answer politely, waiting for a chance to escape.

"Oh, tee-hee, Sweet Sixteen and never been kissed."

"Oh, no," I groan softly to myself, "not that!"

Then up speaks one of my other aunts. "Of course she's been kissed! Now haven't you?"

What a spot! Everyone is looking at me waiting for an answer.

I smile sweetly, while a tell-tale blush sweeps over my face, and then I mumble something about having to babysit that evening.

You can guess what that brings up.

Up speaks Aunt Tessie. "You babysit! Why, I can remember when you were in diapers."

What a pleasant thought! Then they start going over my case history.

Meeting someone on the street is just as bad.

"How old are you?" they ask.

"Sixteen," I say.

"Sweet Sixteen," they say and give one of those funny little laughs. "Sweet Sixteen--why, I can remember when I was sixteen" and on, and on, and on.

That really surprises me. I sometimes wonder if these old people really were ever sixteen. I doubt it.

You'd think by now I'd learn to stay away from people like that, but not me.

I ran into a group of my parent's friends the other day and this is what happened.

"How old are you," they said.

"Sixteen," I answered with a sinking feeling where my heart used to be.

"Sweet Sixteen and--but of course you must have been kissed," one man said.

"Kissed! Of course she's been kissed," another person said. "What this younger generation is coming to, I'll never know." Then they go discussing the evils of the modern day teenagers.

I sneak away just in time to hear one woman say to another, "My, how she's grown! Why, I can remember when she was in diapers."

Oh to be Wonderful Seventeen!

(Babysitting, continued from page 29)

I listen--getting very anxious

For the opening of the door.

The folks are home at last--I'm glad

I'll babysit here no more.

Then next time I'll go right back

Just you wait and see,

But I can tell you one thing

I'll never sit for free!
